DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 4 appears to be incorrect as the cross member bracket is within the cross member and thus cannot connect to an outer lateral side. Applicant may wish to use --inner forward-- and --inner rearward-- lateral sides to clarify.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamuro et al. in view of Kosuge et al. and Weiman.

Yamamuro et al. has the rear floor panel 14 forming a spare-tire compartment, rear cross member 13, and rear support bracket 21 disposed therebetween.

Kosuge et al. teach that the juncture of a cross member 21 and a rear floor side member 18 is reinforced by a cross member bracket 31. Increase in rigidity is inherent.

Weiman teaches that the juncture of a rear floor side member 1 and a cross member 4 may have a pair of side member brackets 8,9, integrally joined by a front section 20 and facing each other inside the rear floor side member. Weiman teaches structural strength as a result. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to provide in Yamamuro et al. a cross member bracket as taught by Kosuge et al. to increase the rigidity of the body and further obvious to provide in this combination the side member brackets as taught by Weiman for the same reason.

3. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamuro et al. in view of Kosuge et al. and Weiman as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Mori.

The bracket of Weiman connects to the inner lateral side of the floor side member at 14,15.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to provide in the references above a bottom flange capable of being welded to the inner bottom side of the rear floor side member as taught by Mori at 30-34B in order to further strengthen the joint.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 2-3 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 3612

5. Claim 4 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Claim 2 is considered to contain allowable subject matter in the recitation of the second side flanges and side body connecting all flanges.

Claim 3 is considered allowable for the recitation of sealed area at a juncture with the spare tire compartment and the three principal members recited.

Claim 4 is considered allowable for the recitation of the cross member bracket connecting to the inner bottom and inner sides of the cross member.

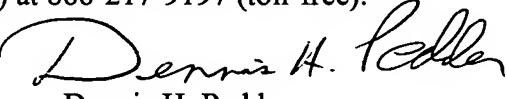

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Kmiec et al., Schulz et al. and Rauthmann et al. detail further spare-tire reinforcements.
